

RACING.

KEENWOOD!

Winner of the Second Race at Guttenburg To-Day.

DAHLMAN WINS THE FIRST.

Lester Beats Out the Refraction Filly in the Third.

(SPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD.)
GUTTENBURG, N. Y., Aug. 21.—It was a fine program offered by the Hudson county Jockey club to-day although it was a hot, muggy journey to get here. When one arrived at the hill top track there was a delightful breeze which was highly appreciated.

There were quite a number of withdrawals from the entries, but the races filled so well that a few would not be missed.

There was a very good-sized crowd present, and among them many of the fair sex. The usual number of bookmakers were in the line and they were kept busy.

The sport of the day began with a six-and-a-half-furlong dash. Algonquin opened the favorite, but the bulk of money went in on Louis R., and he was then first choice, and Algonquin went back a few points.

The race resulted in a upset, for Dahlman, a 12 to 1 shot, won all the way. Louis R. was second and Jesse D. filly third.

The second event was a five furlong affair, with Trinitly a top-heavy favorite. Kenwood was well backed for second choice and Dixie a good third.

The good thing went wrong, for in a pretty hand, Kenwood dived Trinitly. Dixie was third.

A light shower of rain fell as the horses entered the second event and drove every one under cover.

Lester opened a strong favorite for the third event, Refraction filly, however, had many friends and was well played.

Irregular was backed down several points and Trinitly was a long shot. Lester won, but Refraction filly was a long shot, and a half before Jesse D. filly. Time—1:24.4.

Mutuels paid straight, $4.10; place, $8.85; show, $3.20.

Purse $500; for maidens; six and a half furlongs.

Starters, White, Jockey, Straight, Place.
1. Trinitly, 115, Lambly, 12, 1-2
2. Refraction, 112, Jockey, 12, 1-2
3. Dixie, 112, Jockey, 12, 1-2
4. Lester, 112, Jockey, 12, 1-2
5. Kenwood, 112, Jockey, 12, 1-2
6. Jesse D. filly, 112, Jockey, 12, 1-2
7. Louis R., 112, Jockey, 12, 1-2
8. Algonquin, 112, Jockey, 12, 1-2
9. Dahlman, 112, Jockey, 12, 1-2
10. Kenwood, 112, Jockey, 12, 1-2
11. Dixie, 112, Jockey, 12, 1-2
12. Lester, 112, Jockey, 12, 1-2

Dahlman set a lively pace around the far turn and into the stretch, with Louis R. and Little Dan next.

When well straightened out Louis R. set sail for the leader, but could never catch him, for Dahlman won under a pull by a length and a half before Louis R. Time—1:24.4.

Mutuels paid straight, $4.10; place, $8.85; show, $3.20.

Purse $500; for maidens; six and a half furlongs.

Starters, White, Jockey, Straight, Place.
1. Trinitly, 115, Lambly, 12, 1-2
2. Refraction, 112, Jockey, 12, 1-2
3. Dixie, 112, Jockey, 12, 1-2
4. Lester, 112, Jockey, 12, 1-2
5. Kenwood, 112, Jockey, 12, 1-2
6. Jesse D. filly, 112, Jockey, 12, 1-2
7. Louis R., 112, Jockey, 12, 1-2
8. Algonquin, 112, Jockey, 12, 1-2
9. Dahlman, 112, Jockey, 12, 1-2
10. Kenwood, 112, Jockey, 12, 1-2
11. Dixie, 112, Jockey, 12, 1-2
12. Lester, 112, Jockey, 12, 1-2

After five attempts they got the flag to a fair start.

Irregular was the first to show, followed by Trinitly, Lester and Refraction filly.

Before they had run a quarter Blazeway still and rolled over Taylor.

Kenwood and Lester went going around the first turn with Refraction filly, Lester and Democracy next.

HANGED AT NIGHT.

Edward Blair Meets Death After Three Respite.

Executed in the Penitentiary at Columbus, O.

He Kissed the Cross and Then Smiled Until the Trap Fell.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)
COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 21.—Edward Blair, who killed Arthur Henry the night of March 17, 1890, was hanged in the penitentiary here a few minutes after midnight this morning. He had been twice respited.

During the day Blair maintained a stolid demeanor. Father Logan was with him a short time. He spent the afternoon with his sister Laura, who had taken a deep interest in securing another respite.

When she parted with her brother at 5 p. m. she had to be carried to the Warden's quarters.

The coffin was then brought in, in which the body of Blair will be sent to East Monroe for burial.

Blair appealed to Gov. Campbell last night for another respite, dictating a long letter, setting forth that his accomplice, shoemaker, who is to have a hearing, may throw some light on the crime. The Governor positively refused to interfere.

Blair was brought on to the scaffold at 12.07 this morning, accompanied by Father Logan, his spiritual adviser, and the Warden and deputies.

The work of adjusting the straps only occupied a minute, and when asked if he had anything to say, he replied in the negative, except that he bade good-bye to Manager Watkins, of the Prison Board.

Blair kissed the cross before the black cap was drawn over his face. He wore a comely smile from the time he came on the scaffold till the trap fell.

The body writhed for several minutes and the opinion was expressed that the neck was not broken, but that he died from strangulation.

Death came in twelve minutes and twenty seconds.

Edward Blair led a career of crime from early youth. He was one of six children whose father is a shoemaker residing at East Monroe, Highland county.

In early life he organized a gang who were terrorized the country. Blair was hanged while a convict in 1889 for robbing a man named Johnson.

Under the alias of Joseph P. Hill he fell in with two crooks known as Shoemaker and Stoops. On the night of March 17, 1890, they planned to rob Arthur Henry station agent at Hartburg, Ohio.

When they entered the place Blair drew his revolver and ordered Henry to open the safe, which contained about $75. This the agent refused to do, and the refusal cost him his life.

The murderer then escaped, and some weeks later was captured at Parkersburg, W. Va. He was tried at the November term of court, found guilty and sentenced to hang.

As has been stated, he was twice respited.

WAKE UP, MR. MAYOR!

Beattie Is Answerable to You, and You to the People.

These Streets Are Congested with Filth and Should Be Cleaned.

Evidence of Neglect Accumulating on the East Side.

The Department That Can Clean and Won't Clean Must Be Made to Clean.

Let THE EVENING WORLD escort its readers through some of the thoroughfares of the old Seventh Ward, that they may view the fine, broad old streets where half a century ago the equipages of the proud old Kalmuck-brokers rolled about, freighted with the beauty and fashion of the metropolis of the New World.

LOOK LIKE A GARBAGE DUMP.

"The old Seventh Ward" is spoken of reverently by aged New Yorkers. It was less than half a century ago that the aristocracy of the city had its abiding place here. Many an old family still remains in the fine old white-painted mansions of those days, but between and on every side tall fat houses and tenements have reared themselves and young New York has settled here by the tens of thousands.

But what must the spirit of old Mayor Wewert say when it looks down and sees the neglected condition of the streets he used to tread away back in the forties?

If the present chief magistrate of this proud city will put on his hat, and leaving his elegant office in the ancient City Hall, take a stroll through Madison street, he will see a sight that will make him ashamed of his name and title.

He must needs take along his smelling-salts or a pocketful of fragrant Havana, for his nostrils will be assailed all along the course by the foul odors that arise from the accumulation of rubbish, garbage and debris of all kinds on the paved road from Chambers street to the East River.

Michael Smith, standing in the doorway of the six story four-in-hand tenement at 110, said to an EVENING WORLD representative yesterday:

"Sure, the Street-Cleaning Department comes through Madison street once in two weeks, and it's like this most of the time."

"Like this," meant in a distressingly filthy condition, and Mr. Smith pointed out two old paint kettles in the middle of the street that had been undisturbed since Wednesday week.

The other a barrel, some 10 to 15 feet long, a big barrel behind 111, and a heap of decaying vegetable matter, about which swarmed a thousand insects, adorned the pavement a little to the east.

Mrs. Max Rosensthal, in her husband's grocery at 111, said she didn't believe the street was ever cleaner. She was sure she should notice it if the nastiness was ever abated.

A FOUR-METALING POOL.

In the middle of the road opposite 152, was a wooden packing box, an old hat, an old boot, a dead cat, a broken basket, a burst milk can, a wooden load of other refuse of sorts not easily detachable.

Just around the corner in Rutgers street—a street of fine old residences, long since turned into tenements—lies a plank in the gutter. It has lain there so long that it is rotted into a soft pulp, and fragments of it are scattered all about.

Looking down the street towards the docks it appears to be an avenue of neglect. The gutters are almost flush with the walks with dirt and refuse, showing that it has been months since the street-cleaners passed that way.

Returning to Madison street. Some one is building at 314, and has mortar boxes in the street—an all sufficient excuse to Beattie, the man, probably, for leaving the whole block untouched.

At least there is a great, ill-smelling pool of black, slimy water in front of 312, and in its middle is an old leather satchel that has been building for a month or more, according to a workman on the building next door.

Here, too, but far from the scene of building, are a number of broken brick, an old shoe, part of a peach basket, decaying garbage and other disgusting things.

From Scammet to Jackson street, while there is no mountain of filth in Madison street, if the pavement was stood on end and its picture taken it would present the appearance of a wall garlanded with old shoes, tin cans, banana stalks and peelings, butter tins, barrel hoops, broken baskets, rags, stove pipes, melon rinds, cinders and other curious things on a background of three or four inches of dirt.

Artists have painted flowers that almost gave forth delicious odors; but here would be overcome.

Postponed the Delicacy Inquest.

Concealed by today postponed the inquest on the number of footlock Michael Delicacy, in Mulberry street early last Tuesday morning, until 1 o'clock p. m. next Tuesday.

WALL ST. STOCK REPORTS.

Rise in Sugar Certificates Due to a Rumor About Spreckels.

Report that the Trust Gets His Philadelphia Refinery.

London a Larger Buyer To-Day and Better Prices the Rule.

Higher prices were the rule at the Stock Exchange at the opening this morning. London having come in as a large buyer of its specialties, which brought about an advance of 14 to 24 per cent., the latter in Louisville & Nashville.

As usual of late the professionals fought the rise, and under offerings from this source the gain noted was lost. The market subsequently rallied again, and after 1 o'clock weakened once more, but the changes here were merely fractional.

A Chicago special says that the "weather in the West is still favorable for everything that grows out of the ground."

The industrial were the features of the share market late in the day. American Sugar Refining rising to 86 and Cordage to 67. The advance in American Sugar Refining was due to a report that Spreckels had sold his Philadelphia refinery to the American sugar people.

Treasurer Scaries, of the American Company, will neither deny nor affirm the rumor. The general stock market was generally strong at the close, but the net changes for the day were slight.
